

This image shows the fore-edge of a book, oriented vertically. The left side of the image displays the book's binding, which appears to be made of a dark, textured material, possibly leather or cloth, with visible wear and some lighter-colored patches. The right side of the image shows the edges of the book's pages, which are stacked and appear as a series of light-colored, slightly irregular lines. The overall image is high-contrast, with deep blacks and bright whites, giving it a graphic, almost abstract quality.

This image shows a blank, aged, cream-colored page, likely an endpaper or flyleaf of a book. The paper has a slightly textured appearance with some minor discoloration and small dark spots, possibly due to age or handling. A vertical crease is visible near the right edge, and the binding edge is visible on the left.
